SURFING AT BARRATO DE SINCHE You don't need to go far to find good surf in the North; just head to this little fishing village, on the island of La Gomera, a mere 50-minute flight from San Cristóbal de La Laguna. The winds blowing from the Canary Islands make it a little cold, but this doesn't mean you can't go surfing; in fact, the sea here has an average height of 1.5 metres and the waves are rarely more than knee-high. The finest beaches are found in the vicinity of Barrato de Sincha, on the western shore of La Gomera. There are sandy beaches and pebbles, and a lot of them, but some of the most stunning ones can only be found on this part of the island. Among these, you will find Barrato de Sincha beach, one of the most beautiful in the Canary Islands, which is well-known for its light and crystal-clear water. The beach has a private zone, a beautiful area with a bar-restaurant and toilets, and an open-air dressing room. The water here is of a light green colour and the beach is almost like a lagoon, with shallow turquoise water. If you are looking for a more secluded spot to chill out, head to the smaller beaches around the southern part of the island. The waves are a little bigger here and the sea is warmer, making it a favourite spot for lovers of surfing. The best 82157476af
